Cellected from the Memorials of Las Casas, O'Mears, Montholon, Antenmarchi, and others. By Jone S. C. Arsott. With Illustrations. Sec., muslin, $2.50.

This volume is devoted to an account of the last years of Napoleon, during his exile under the command of the British Government. Commencing with the voyage to St. Helena, of which it gives an interesting narrative, it proceeds to describe the daily routine of the failen Emperor from his landing on the reland till his death. The record of his conversations on a great variety of topics is full of interest, and tends to confirm the views presented by Mr. Abbott in his biography of Napoleon. Samples Gratis-Agents Wanted-Subscribe acts

THE GOOD TIME COMING.

THE WIDOW BEDOTT PAPERS has evidently made an impression. Editors in all parts of the United States agree that it is the MOST ORIGINAL VEIN OF HUMOR that has set been epined in this country.

Says The St. Louis (Mo.) Democrat: "As Yankee papers they are vastly superi r in dileacy and insteas of perception of the humorous side of that charlacter to any of the editors of Judge Hallenton. If you are trushed with dyapopela heart-ache, in isenthropy, I ypocondata; if you are humsted with the hallucination that you are a post or remarkably fine writer, and are dying with cherin that your claims upon the public eys and ear have been simplify ignored by the blant-minded friearming of the pester-pot and achiever, but he begins indeed. "Edder Saiffles" ache would chase a while legion of his devile links the time regions of abstrictions and positolities."

Says The New-Orleans Greecont: "The most original production of the kind we have ever seen; abounding in with humor and satire; dissecting the Calenac or of people with annothed linkely, and yet with none of that savage spirit evinced by many who undersaac the task; running over with fun, and constraining the most havened Cynic to be first time, a wordhiper of Micrus."

Says The Portland Argus: "It contains the very cream of has been the grand guiding ear in the life of the author; and the thousands who have been so long looking for that important era in human existence, will now have their desires gratified by and those who open it should first look well to their suttons, for trey may depend upon it that their ris his organs will demand lib-ral room for exercise?

trey may depend upon it that their risble organs with demand librial room for exercise."

Says The Yankee Privateer: "Such another volume of (an, wit and sarcasm we believe was never published. Sam Silek has perpetrated a good deal in the humorous line, José Downing set the universal Yankee nation grinning. Doesticks wrote a furny book and then 'glis cout,' Yankee Hill, Falconbridge, Zabdiel Stubbe, Mrs. Partington, Mrs. Caudie, Mrs. Sparrawarass at d Job Sase, have all contributed something to make people 'laugs and grow far,' but the 'widow Bedoct has distanced them all in the mirrh-providing line."

Says The New York Dispatch: "As far as regards wit, humori—we may say genius—they surpass asything of the aind that has been published for years so immeasurably that comparison were foily."

Says The United States Journal: "This blok is a reservoir of real, genuine, original fun, and fun too that made itself.

Says The United States Journal: "This book is a reservoir of real, genuine, original fun, and fun too that made itself. Most fun-makers have to manufacture the article—have to labou up to the elevation of an irreducible jake; but the humor of this book bubbles up from an overflawing fountain of fun. The fair author when a child, made fun, and con dot't heip fit—made for no ther playmates and neighbors and got scolded for it. As a later age she pitched into the views and folilies that the found prevalent all about her. Gossips in society, knaves in rade, hypocrities in the church, and the ridiculous everywhere, furnished exhaustless subjects for her satter, and the Widow Boott Papers is the launter proveding result. It is rustic courpished exhaustless subjects for her saftre, and the Widow Bedott Papers is the laugater provening result. It is rustice country fun, too. It smarks of pumpths, pig. 1/2 zag fences, faim yards, tea-parties, sewing accieties, grassy is ness, and espcia is the rural church and the extrons thereof. Country talk, econtry manners and country life are hit off in a valu of inusitable country humor. In short, the book is giving the city and country everywhere one big laugh—the biggest since Doesticks.
